A campus like no other

Located on the traditional lands of the Atikameksheng Anishnawbek, our campus is nestled among five freshwater lakes.

Our natural setting is minutes from the downtown area and comprises more than 765 acres of land that adjoin the vast Lake Laurentian Conservation Area.

Nature is at the core of the University's identity, and learning here, in this awe-inspiring natural environment, is a true pleasure for the senses. Attended by nearly 9,000 students, Laurentian is moderate in size, and features amenities within close proximity. For those 1,600 students in residence, there is no need to arrange for transportation, and getting that extra sleep in the morning is a real advantage for many of them. Forgot something in residence? Not a problem, as it is only a minute or two away.

The downtown area, where the University's spectacular McEwen School of Architecture is located, can be accessed within minutes by hopping on one of the many transit buses that commute back and forth to the main campus. The School of Architecture is located at the intersection of Elm and Elgin streets.

You can also hit the beach! The Laurentian campus boasts its very own beach on the shores of Lake Nepahwin. A popular private spot for Welcome Week activities, the beach is accessed within a short walking distance down the campus' well-groomed trails.

Francophonie at the heart of Laurentian

At Laurentian, 18% of the student population pursue their studies in French. As such, the learning environment is ideal for Francophones, Francophiles and Anglophones to improve and enhance their language skills in both of Canada's official languages.

Sudbury selected as a Welcoming FRINCOPHONE

Sudbury has been selected as a Welcoming Francophone Community as part of the Government of Canada's Action Plan for Official Languages."

Canada

There is a definite Francophone reality in Sudbury that is prevalent. Some pockets of the city such as le Moulin à fleur and several suburbs such as Val Thérèse, Hanmer, Azilda, Chelmsford and others thrive on their rich Francophone heritage.

With deep pride for our Francophone roots, Laurentian became the first bilingual university to obtain partial designation under Ontario's French-Language Services Act on July 1, 2014. This designation symbolizes the University's efforts to support the growth and development of its Francophone students. Therefore, don't hesitate to request services in French wherever you may be at Laurentian!

In addition to its French-language programs and services, and thanks to its many partnerships, Laurentian has been contributing for decades to the vitality and development of a cultural and associative environment that is envied throughout Laurentian also offers you the unique opportunity to complement your degree with a Certificate of Bilingualism which highlights your competencies and demonstrates that you are officially bilingual. To do so, you need to ensure that you acquire a minimum of 15 credits in courses offered in English or French – whichever is not your language of study – during your program at Laurentian.

The certificate will be a valuable asset for your job search and career progression!

Immerse yourself in Anishinaabe culture

The Indigenous Sharing and Learning Centre recognizes that Laurentian University is located in the Robinson-Huron Treaty Territory, and that the community of Sudbury is built on the traditional lands of the Atikameksheng Anishnawbek and Wahnapitae First Nation.

Indigenous Student Affairs (ISA) team provides a supportive learning environment and culturally safe space by providing academic support, counselling, access to Elders, cultural and social programming throughout the year, and of course advocacy for students to ensure they acquire a rich and positive postsecondary experience.

Celebrating Anishinaabe culture and sharing traditions and knowledge are part of everyday life on campus, thanks to the dedication and efforts of many groups:

- Indigenous Student Affairs
- Indigenous Studies Department
- School of Indigenous Relations
- Laurentian University Native Education Council
- Supporting Aboriginal Graduate Education Group (SAGE)
- Maamwizing Indigenous Research
- Indigenous Students Circle
- Indigenous Social Work Students Council
- Traditional Anishinaabe Elders and Knowledge Carriers

The Indigenous Sharing and Learning Centre

Officially opened in June 2017, this unique and inspiring building is designed to welcome people of all backgrounds to gather, learn and promote Indigeneity. The Centre hosts workshops, events and celebrations open to the entire community.

- ✓ A spectacular multipurpose round-room ✓ Spacious study spaces
- ✓ Private rooms for counselling and consulting with Elder and Knowledge Carriers
- The ISLC is a peaceful retreat for students.

Course delivery terminology

In recent months, the traditional in-person classroom instruction was temporarily replaced with online, remote, hybrid or blended delivery. Zoom, Microsoft Teams, Google Meet and other meeting and collaboration platforms have been integrated in our teaching tools, and new terminology has surfaced.

What does it all mean and how can you differentiate between these options?

ONLINE AND REMOTE INSTRUCTION

Online Instruction – is developed over an extended period of time, by an instructional designer and a media services team, with the intent of full online delivery of learning experiences and outcomes. These courses incorporate various instructional strategies and utilize educational technologies that allow students to meaningfully interact with course content, the instructor and fellow students, while still allowing some flexibility in the student's schedule.

Remote Instruction – is developed as an alternative to face-toface instruction, generally for a limited period of time, to ensure learning outcomes. Typically, content and activities are developed incrementally and added regularly based on the progress of instruction. Technology and modalities can vary based on what best leads to the course outcomes.

Online vs. Remote – Remote teaching occurs when the instructor transitions the delivery of a face-to-face (classroom) course to an online platform, or alternate mode of delivery. An online course, however, has been purposely designed for online teaching using online learning design principles.

BLENDED AND HYBRID LEARNING

Blended Learning – is a method of teaching that integrates technology and digital media with traditional instructor-led classroom activities, giving students more flexibility to customize their learning experiences. Essentially, face-to-face learning is complemented by online components that add valuable content to the in-class lesson.

Hybrid Learning – students studying remotely (at a distance) and students physically studying in a classroom setting are receiving instruction simultaneously, with the use of virtual instruction solutions.

Blended vs. Hybrid – Blended learning will integrate face-to-face learning with valuable content accessible online. Hybrid learning ensures delivery of course content to students learning in a classroom environment and those learning remotely, at a distance.

FLIPPED CLASSROOM INSTRUCTION

The Flipped Classroom is another form of blended learning where a student is first exposed to new material outside of class, usually in the form of an online presentation. When the student attends class in a face-to-face classroom setting, the class time is used to apply the material in the form of problem-solving and discussion.

SYNCHRONOUS AND ASYNCHRONOUS INSTRUCTION

Synchronous Instruction – instructors and students gather at the same time to interact in 'real time'.

Asynchronous Instruction – course materials are prepared in advance, and students can access these materials at a time of their choosing. They can then interact with their instructor and peers through online channels in 'real time', when it is most convenient for the group.

Synchronous vs. Asynchronous – Synchronous instruction occurs in 'real time' while asynchronous allows flexibility in when instruction and interaction occurs, over a longer period of time.

Over the course of your studies, you may well receive instruction through different modes of delivery. Rest assured that each has been selected and optimized to give you the best learning experience available.

Mature students

As a mature student, you may be working toward a degree after being away from formal education for a number of years or expanding your knowledge in a certain field.

The admission status of "mature students" recognizes those adults without the previous academic performance required for admission yet have interests and work experience that suggests anticipated success in university studies.

A mature student is someone who:

- is 21 years of age or older by the end of the academic year to which they have applied;
- has not attended a secondary or postsecondary institution for at least one calendar year prior to the beginning of their university studies;
- is not eligible for admission on any other basis.

Please note the completion of the minimum requirements above does not guarantee admission to any course, program or department at Laurentian. For detailed instructions on how to apply, please see pages

Raised in the Arctic in a remote community on Baffin Island, I could not have found a better place to call home than Laurentian. What a beautiful place to study!

After 10 years of working and studying in the dental field, it was not an easy decision to leave everything and start building a new career path. Miles away from friends and family, the welcoming Laurentian community quickly made me feel at home. The environment, exceptional professors, and my experience with staff and services have all confirmed I made the right decision.

I am also the recipient of the NSERC Undergraduate Student Research Award – one of many incredible research opportunities Laurentian has to offer. This research award has allowed me to study and conduct research under a remarkable professor and further explore my passion for the field of biomedical biology.

I could not have chosen a better place to pursue my educational goals.

Laurentian offers a number of services to support you while you complete your studies. These include academic advising, writing assistance, childcare services, financial support and so much more:
